Administrative Leadership

Currently, Dr. Larsen is one of only four women among over 100 faculty in the College of Design, Construction and Planning (DCP) at UF who is a full professor (2018) – achieved while leading the School of Landscape Architecture and the Department of Urban and Regional Planning. The School consists of 6 research centers, 32 faculty, 3 regular adjuncts, and 7 staff. As School Director, Dr. Larsen secured faculty support for significantly increased collaboration between the two departments that comprise the School, led revisions to its by-laws to reflect this collaboration, introduced and taught a new interdisciplinary course, secured funding for enhanced technologies in shared classroom spaces, developed a faculty mentoring program, established common research themes through a participatory engagement process among the faculty, spearheaded adoption of the school’s first strategic plan, and launched a successful speaker series. While Department Chair, Dr. Larsen initiated and coordinated the first fully online accredited graduate planning degree in the U.S. During her tenure, she shepherded the department through two accreditation reviews, both securing the maximum 7-year period with the most recent review including the online delivery of the graduate degree. Recognizing this groundbreaking achievement, the Planning Accreditation Board decision letter noted the “many areas of excellence” including “an on-campus program that addresses the critical concerns of the state and a high-quality online degree program.” In addition to Director and Chair, Dr. Larsen also functioned as Program Director of the MURP Online Degree Program (from establishment of the program in July 2011 through early January 2015 and from February 2019 through June 2019). Further, her early leadership of a college-wide committee (2002-09) to strengthen the Historic Preservation Program resulted in a strategic plan for the program, a new graduate concentration and certificate, and set the stage for a new graduate degree in the field. In recognition of her leadership accomplishments, she was chosen through a competitive process to participate in a nationally recognized 2-week workshop in June 2016 for women leaders in higher education with Higher Education Resource Services (HERS).

Awards and Grants

Teaching Experience

At the University of Florida, Dr. Larsen's courses in planning theory and history, housing policy, and historic preservation ensure students acquire the knowledge and skills to become reflective practitioners who can assess the layers of history that shape the physical, economic, and social city. Her commitment to enhancing pedagogy focuses on online education and interdisciplinary initiatives. She has received Outstanding Teacher of the Year four times from the Department of Urban and Regional Planning and once collegewide.

The new courses Dr. Larsen designed for the University of Florida are indicated below. She has taught and/or is presently teaching the following courses:

- DCP 6710 Introduction to Historic Preservation (Elective Course, new course)
- DCP 7940 Supervised Teaching (individually with 6 doctoral students who went on to teach courses in our undergraduate program)
- DCP 7794 Doctoral Seminar
- DCP 7979 Advanced Research
- URP 4000 Preview of Urban and Regional Planning
- URP 6100 Planning Theory and History (Core Course); major revision into an on-line course launched in Fall 2012
- URP 6341 Urban Planning Project (Fulfills Core Studio Requirement)
- URP 6745 Housing, Public Policy, and Planning (Core Elective Course, new course)
- URP 6746 Topical Debates in Housing (Elective Course, new course)
- URP 6920 Colloquium (redesigned with new interdisciplinary focus on planning and landscape architecture)
- URP 6910 Supervised Research
- URP 6971 Research for Master's Thesis
- URP 6979 Masters Research Project

Throughout her service as a faculty member in URP, Dr. Larsen has participated on 116 graduate committees. This includes chairing 39, co-chairing 30, and participating as a member on 22 master's thesis and project committees for students who have completed their degrees and chairing 6, co-chairing 3, and participating as a member on 5 dissertation committees for Ph.D. students who have completed their degrees.

Her students have earned doctoral degrees at leading universities, including Cornell University and University of Michigan, and secured employment in prominent positions, including Program Analyst at FEMA, Director of State and Local Policy at the National Housing Trust, Research Manager at Grounded Solutions Network, Chief Programs Officer and Technical Advisor Florida Housing Coalition, and Project Manager at Walt Disney Imagineering.

Publications:

Kristin's peer reviewed publications are chiefly sole-authored. She also collaborates with junior scholars, including four of her former doctoral students – Tyeshia Redden, Laurel Harbin, Jeongseob Kim, and Ruonui Wang. Among her outstanding publications below are a 2016 biography of Clarence S. Stein, a 2019 award-winning neighborhood study with three co-authors, a co-authored affordable housing suitability model report, a co-authored assessment of the contributions of historic preservation to quality of life in Florida, and a sole-authored study for HUD on state housing trust funds.

Conference Presentations

During her time in academia, Dr. Larsen has made 6 peer reviewed presentations at international conferences and 27 peer reviewed presentations at national conferences. In addition, she served on the program committees for two international and one national conference and coordinated three roundtable discussions at national conferences. Reflecting the significance of our online degree program, the Association of Collegiate Schools of Planning (ACSP) President invited her to present at a presidential session during the national conference in 2012 regarding the recently launched online program. Further, Dr. Larsen was an invited speaker at the 75th anniversary celebration of Greenbelt, MD, helped coordinate and presented at the 75th anniversary of the City and Regional Planning program at Cornell University in 2010, and co-presented the keynote speech at the Florida Trust for Historic Preservation conference in 2007.

Committee Memberships and Activities

Beyond Dr. Larsen’s administrative roles in the college, she has also attained notable achievements in service. Her leadership extends to the national level with the Society for American City and Regional Planning History (SACRPH) where she served from 2005 to 2009 as Executive Secretary and the Association of Collegiate Schools of Planning (ACSP). Appointed by two subsequent ACSP Presidents (Charles Connerly and June Manning Thomas), she served as a member on their respective Review and Appraisal Committees to advise on their presidential agendas and priorities. Her election to the ACSP Governing Board as Southeastern Regional Representative (2016-2018) and more recently to the ACSP Executive Committee as Secretary (2021-2023) attests to the sustained recognition and growth in her leadership roles.

She has also served on the ACSP/Planetizen Task Force reviewing and advising on Planetizen's ranking system of planning programs and been appointed by two Florida Governors to the Affordable Housing Study Commission.
